We want graduate students within your department to know about the great professional development resources we offer. Specifically, they will 1) learn techniques for searching for external funding opportunities, 2) develop skills in writing persuasive proposals, and 3) develop a history of applying for external funds.

Our website includes important information for your graduate students about Division of Sponsored Program services dedicated to Graduate and Professional students at all stages of their graduate career. These services include:

Personalized Instruction. We can help identify goals for funding and academic timelines, key search terms, effective search strategies, and time management tips.

Funding Information. We provide access to subscription databases, government agency databases, private sources, foundations, UI Grant Bulletin, application information, and other funding links.

Free Proposal Review. We can review funding applications, provide feedback, and help improve grant writing skills through individual appointments.

Routing Applications. We can assist students with the required UIRIS electronic routing form and help with post-award non-financial administration.

Group Presentations. We can create customized presentations for student groups or seminars related to DSP services, funding search strategies, or grant writing skills.

Free Services. These include free printing and photocopying of proposals, free phone calls and fax to funding sources, and free courier services to deliver applications.
